Here’s A Topping Idea: Go Guacamole

(NAPSA)—Whether you’re looking for a way to add a new twist to your old favorites or looking for a healthier alternative to mayo or ranch dressing, consider the flavorful creaminess of avocados.

Avocados are often dismissed from healthy foods for being high in fat. A closer look at this fruit proves that they are, in fact, high in monounsaturated fats—otherwise known as “the good fats.” Avocados are also rich in vitamins and minerals, especially magnesium, folic acid, lutein and vitamins B, E and K. They also boast an impressive 60 percent more potassium than a banana; are high in fiber (including soluble fiber), even compared to other fruits; and are naturally sodium and cholesterol free.

If you’re finding the price of avocados too high or have problems with over/underripe fruits causing issues, try premade all-natural avocado products like Wholly Guacamole. Found in the produce section of your grocery store, Wholly Guacamole is preservative and additive free with only five ingredients: avocado, jalapeno puree, onions, salt and garlic. Easy to use and full of flavor, the product is available in larger servings as well as single-serve 100-calorie snack packs—perfect for sandwiches, lunch boxes, after-school snacks and more.

Guacamole isn’t just for chips. It also makes a great dip with carrots and other veggies and a terrific topping for hot dogs, grilled chicken and in this delicious twist on your grilled burgers:

Guacamole Cilantro Lime Cheeseburgers are just a sample of the great meals you can make with healthful avocados.

Wholly Guacamole Cilantro Lime Cheeseburgers

- Wholly Guacamole
- ½ lime, juiced
- 1 tsp garlic
- ½ cup diced onion
- ½ cup diced tomatoes
- 2 lbs lean ground beef
- 6 slices of Monterey Jack cheese
- 6 hamburger buns

In a large bowl, mix together ground beef and the juice of half a lime, garlic, onion and tomatoes. Form the meat into 6 patties. Cook the burgers to the desired doneness on a preheated grill. Add a slice of cheese to each burger during the last minute of cooking. Serve on toasted buns with a healthy dollop of Wholly Guacamole.

As with all Wholly Guacamole products, it’s truly all natural. The company does not preserve its products using heat or chemicals, which can damage flavors.

Morning Fuel For School—“Break The Fast”

Yogurt parfaits can be a great way to enjoy a good breakfast.

(NAPSA)—There are many good reasons breakfast is often called the most important meal of the day. Most significantly, breakfast gives you energy. When you wake up in the morning, your body has been fasting, or going without food, during the hours you were asleep. Eating breakfast means you “break the fast” and give your body (and brain) the energy needed to function—very important for school-aged children.

Studies have shown that children’s learning is stimulated and they perform better academically when they are “fueled for school.” Eating breakfast also helps to develop better eating patterns—you and your family will feel more satisfied and be less likely to overeat or eat too much junk food later in the day. Breakfast provides a great opportunity to get all the daily vitamins and minerals needed by eating nutritious foods such as whole grains, fruits and dairy products.

So how can you conveniently make sure your morning routine is healthful? The National Frozen & Refrigerated Foods Association recommends stocking your freezer and refrigerator with convenient, tasty, healthful options from the cool aisles of your local grocery store. There are many quick, tasty, nutritious options that will please both parents and kids.

You can have these delicious breakfasts ready in minutes:

- Fill toasted whole grain waffles with peanut butter and jam for a unique breakfast sandwich; serve with orange juice.
- Mix yogurt, frozen strawberries, skim milk and bananas in a blender for a tasty smoothie.
- Heat frozen pancakes and top with fruits and with syrup or honey.
- Make breakfast sandwiches with bagels, cheese, egg substitute and precooked sausage.

For a special morning treat, create this delicious yogurt parfait to make everyone in your family smile.

Breakfast Yogurt Parfait

- 1½ cups vanilla low-fat yogurt
- ¾ cup low-fat granola
- 1 cup berries (strawberries, blueberries, blackberries), frozen or fresh

Layer in parfait glasses or bowls: granola, yogurt and fruit. Repeat layers. Serves two.

Geothermal Utilities Are A Hot Topic

(NAPSA)—Those who think geothermal heating and cooling systems are just for individual homes may be in for a surprise.

A number of cities, both in the U.S. and elsewhere, are exploring how to best implement the technology to create a geothermal utility. They believe such a utility can offer consumers lower energy costs as well as tax savings.

How It Works

A geothermal heat pump (GHP) works very similarly to a normal heat pump except that it exchanges heat with the ground instead of the outdoor air. A GHP uses a system of underground pipes filled with water to transfer thermal energy to and from the home and brings it up to temperatures suitable to heat or cool.

Using the earth as a natural energy source, a geothermal system can operate more efficiently than ordinary heating and air-conditioning systems because it can deliver five units of energy for every one unit of electrical energy used. That translates to a 500 percent efficiency rating.

An Example In Michigan

The city of Wyandotte, Michigan is creating a geothermal utility and installing geothermal heating and cooling systems in 48 structures located in the city.

Tentative plans call for the city’s municipal services to cover the average $8,000 cost for each well and charge home and building owners a monthly service fee and energy charge, based on the capacity of the system installed.

Experts say homeowners who use a geothermal utility may save as much as 70 percent on heating and cooling costs and be eligible for a tax break.

It’s projected that homeowners using the utility will save as much as 70 percent compared to the costs associated with more conventional heating and cooling systems.

Plus, homeowners will be able to take advantage of a 30 percent tax credit on the cost of purchasing and installing a geothermal system. This means the system can provide savings both by costing less than a traditional air source heat pump and delivering even greater efficiency.

“In addition to savings, a geothermal system provides precise distribution of comfortable air all year long, eliminating hot and cold spots throughout the home and providing quiet operation,” said Jeff Caplan, the principal contractor on the project. He selected a geothermal heat pump from WaterFurnace to provide efficient heating and cooling to the original homes in the project.

WaterFurnace International, Inc. is a leading manufacturer of geothermal and water source heat pumps.

Modern Technology Simplifies Yard Maintenance

(NAPSA)—You can significantly reduce the time spent maintaining your property by employing modern mower technology.

Compared to older tractor-style mowers, modern mid-mount zero-turn riding mowers cut much faster, with enhanced maneuverability. This lets them be much more productive and versatile, as the “turn on a dime” handling means operators can trim closer to landscape features and deftly navigate around flowerbeds.

Instead of the traditional gearbox, a zero-turn rider uses a system of hydraulic pumps and wheel motors to drive the mower forward and backward at variable speeds of up to 10 miles per hour. The zero-turning radius is achieved with independent hydro motors on each drive wheel, which allow one wheel to run forward simultaneously as the other runs in reverse. When combined with freely rotating caster wheels ahead of the cutting deck, the system allows for a zero-turning radius and a heightened level of control.

“For many folks, time is almost more valuable than money,” said Daryn Walters of Exmark Mfg. “The switch from a tractor-style mower to a mid-mount zero-turn riding mower dramatically reduces the time it takes to care for the yard. Not only do users have more time to do what they love, the unmatched cut quality delivers a professionally maintained appearance.”

Walters noted that zero-turn riders are the dominant mower type for professional landscape

The latest in mower technology can help the grass be greener on your side of the fence without your having to spend a lot of time.

contractors and the virtues for which contractors choose the mowers are similar to those homeowners want.

In short, he said it’s about doing more in less time.

“Their business is built on delivering a great cut quality, but to be profitable they need to do it as quickly as possible. This is where a mid-mount zero-turn rider shines.”

There are a number of considerations that factor into the ultimate value of the mower. Mower options including higher-horsepower engines, wider cutting decks and accessory bagging systems are available.

Bigger isn’t always better, however, and it makes sense to choose an appropriate zero-turn mower for the property. When selecting a mid-mount zero-turn riding mower, consider overall size, landscaping and budget.

More guidelines on selecting the right mower for a property can be found at www.exmark.com/NotSureWhatToBuy.aspx.

Student Drivers: Do Your Homework Before Buying A Car

(NAPSA)—Families looking for a safe, reliable and reasonably priced car for a college driver get better grades when they do their homework.

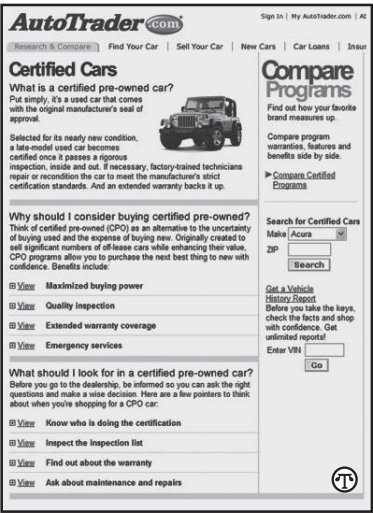

Automotive sites such as AutoTrader.com contain useful tools and information to help you figure out exactly what type of car is right for you. Even before considering make and model, the first step is often deciding whether a new, used or Certified Pre-Owned (CPO) car is best for your budget.

“Certified Pre-Owned cars seem ideal for the student driver—offering the experience of buying a new car for a used car price,” said car expert Chip Perry, President and CEO, AutoTrader.com.

CPO cars are used, but are often selected for their nearly new condition. They go through rigorous inspection to become certified—to gain the “seal of approval”—by the original manufacturer, which often provides a warranty.

To some, CPO cars mean being able to buy a luxury brand for less, while others look at it as peace of mind. You can request the list used during inspection and know what repairs or maintenance work was done. Even better, many CPO programs offer roadside assistance and free maintenance.

After you’ve compiled all your research on the type of car you want, you can save time and energy by shopping for your car by make and model on a classified Web site such as AutoTrader.com. If you’re on a tight budget, as many college students are, you can easily search for and compare similar cars in your price range.

Just like at school, do your homework, compile the research and then make an educated decision. Applying that to buying a car will put you a step ahead of the class, and closer to finding your perfect car.

CAR CARE CORNER

Program Offers A Crash Course In Handling Auto Accidents

(NAPSA)—Experts say traffic accidents can be among the most stressful events a person can experience. Fortunately, a new program has been created to help drivers deal with that stress more effectively.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), there were over 6 million traffic accidents reported to police in 2004. That breaks down to more than 11 accidents per minute; by the time you finish reading this article, over 30 auto accidents will have taken place, and that doesn’t include the minor fender benders that go unreported.

Whether it’s due to Mother Nature, mechanical failure or the guy behind you trying to balance a cell phone conversation with a cup of coffee, the unfortunate reality is that it’s easy to become one of these statistics at some point in your daily commute.

If that collision does happen, many insurance companies offer some kind of roadside assistance plan to customers, often as part of a special package or a stand-alone service for an additional charge.

However, recent reports have shown that using these insurer-based services may ultimately lead to higher insurance premiums. Those same reports also bring to light the often-overlooked manufacturer-based roadside assistance programs and the many benefits they can offer motorists. Aside from having no effect on insurance premiums, they can offer better towing options, a wider range of services and are almost always included for the duration of the vehicle’s warranty, as is the case with the plan offered by Ford Motor Company.

“We like to think of our Roadside Assistance Program as a paramedic for your car,” said Ford Customer Service Division’s George Gilbert.

The program is available on every new vehicle the company offers, be it a lease or purchase. It comes at no additional cost, it’s valid for the duration of the vehicle’s standard warranty and it offers drivers a variety of services that aren’t just limited to warranty issues.

“Many people think a manufacturer roadside program is just to assist them if their car breaks down, but we’re here to help our customers in just about every situation imaginable,” said Gilbert.

For example, towing services to dealerships up to 35 miles away can be obtained for any purpose, including accidents. In the event of an accident, the program offers motorists the convenience of a single call to help manage the mayhem, from police dispatching (if necessary) to towing services, emergency services and even repair arrangements. The plan can also assist drivers in more benign situations, such as a flat tire or keys locked in a vehicle. If you run out of fuel or need a jump start, customer service representatives can coordinate with local services to get you back on the road with minimal delay. The service is available 24 hours a day, 365 days a year and is valid anywhere in the United States, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

Manufacturer roadside programs such as the one found at Ford Motor Company offer convenience, confidence and reliability to customers in one comprehensive package, all while offering a cost savings over many insurer-provided assistance programs.

Using a factory-based roadside program can help get your car to the people who know it best, and by insisting on genuine original equipment manufacturer parts for your repair, you will help ensure your vehicle is returned to its former glory. When that unexpected collision occurs, take a moment and reach for the companion that came with your car; it’s the onboard “paramedic” that’s ready to take care of you in your time of need.
