This beautiful camper is in excellent condition — used sparingly since purchased new. Only one owner. Sleeps 2-3 adults, or 2 adults and 2 children. Comes with sway bar, heavy duty hitch, electric jack, and level. Has a wet bathroom, desk, dinette, full kitchen with refrigerator, stove, oven, and many cabinets for storage. Everything works perfectly and is very clean. Has propane heat with a thermostat, air conditioner, and electronic panel for checking fresh, gray, and black water levels. Is approximately 6000-6500lbs when fully loaded. Tows beautifully, you'll forget it's back there. The International CCD is the higher end of the Airstream trailers, so this trailer is built to last and has beautiful finishes. More photos available upon request. ## Are You a Temple or a Party Store?

Many of us have heard the statement that our body is the temple where our soul lives. A few weeks ago Barb was giving a talk on nutrition. She asked this question of the audience. Is your body a Temple or a Party Store? It struck me that this is a great analogy for where some of us are and where some of us would like to be. Now, if we add to that the concept of Body-Mind-Spirit, we can create a great model for how to live.

What would a Physical Temple look like? The body would be strong and muscular. The skin smooth and clear. The eyes bright and sparkling. Our nose is open and able to smell everything. Our tongue clean and able to experience the full range of gustatory delights (tastes) (I just love that word, gustatory). Our hearing is sharp. We would be able to breathe fully and run with ease. Our bounding heart provides nourishment to all our cells and tissues. Digestion and assimilation of nutrients are flawless. The elimination of wastes through the skin, lungs, kidneys and bowels keeps our body fresh and vibrant. The hands are flexible with excellent fine motor skills. Feet and legs carry us with poise and efficiency. Our back is strong and supportive of all our physical activity. The body is an efficient machine doing everything we desire it to do. Daily exercise is an enjoyable routine.

What would a Mental Temple look like? The memory is sharp and clear. We can focus or daydream, which ever we need at the time. We are funny and enjoy a great laugh. Our thoughts are peaceful and comfortable. We see the good in everyone and every situation. We know that everything happens for a reason and a purpose that serves us in some way, even if we do not understand it. We hang out with joyful loving people. We use our minds to plan and create great things; and we wallow in successful outcomes.

Our Spiritual Temple would have a daily spiritual practice. There would a time of prayer, meditation, and contemplation. Unconditional love for everyone we meet is automatic. Through out the day we take time to marvel at the wonder and majesty of God's Creation. We read and study with the innocent open mindedness of a child.

I know that most party stores in our towns are not like this and the owners do provide an important service for many people. This analogy is not intended to offend any of those great people. But I want you to picture a dirty, grimy, little store that is filled with many things that we intuitively know are not healthy for us: alcohol, tobacco, pop, coffee, junk food, pornography, processed food with many additives and preservative, etc. Outside are some seedy characters selling drugs. The energy of this place is low and dark.

We all find ourselves somewhere on the teeter totter between the Temple and the Party Store. As you move back and forth, day by day, keep the model of the Temple in your mind as your ideal. You will slowly be attracted to do those things that will bring you closer to that place where your soul does live in a Temple.

Put Your Health in Your Own Hands. Bob Huttinga PA-C. 989-352-6500.

Sun spots on your skin may be a warning

NORTH AMERICAN PRECIS SYNDICATE

Spending time in the sun can result in more than just fun and games. For instance, many people find that as they age, their skin begins to show the appearance of some pigmentation commonly known as “sun spots.” These “spots” can increase in number as a person ages.

Unfortunately, what many people don't realize is that some of these sun spots may actually be actinic keratosis (AK), a skin condition that affects 58 million Americans and has the potential to progress to squamous cell carcinoma (SCC), the second-most-common skin cancer.

The good news is an education effort is raising awareness about the problem and how to treat it. The campaign website can be found at www.SpotSignsofAK.com.

Too Much Sun Can Be Risky

AKs are rough-textured, dry, scaly patches on the skin that can range in color and vary in size. They are the result of years of cumulative sun damage and most often appear on parts of the body that are most exposed to sunlight, such as the face, scalp, ears, neck, hands and arms.

AKs are most common in older adults who have spent a lot of time in the sun during their lives. However, even routine activities such as walking the dog or grabbing your mail can lead to sun damage. People who develop AKs typically will not develop just one. The condition will present in numerous “spots” or will continue to present intermittently over time.

An Effort to Raise Awareness

Dr. Ellen Marmur — a dermatologist and cosmetic surgeon — is raising awareness about actinic keratosis by promoting the Spot Signs of AK campaign. The campaign is an initiative developed by DUSA Pharmaceuticals.

HEALTH: Many people don't realize that the skin pigmentation known as “sun spots” may actually be actinic keratosis (AK), a skin condition that affects 58 million Americans. (NAPSI Photo)

Said Dr. Marmur, “Education around melanoma and other skin cancers has been very strong, but actinic keratosis remains relatively unknown.”

Early Detection Is Critical

According to Dr. Marmur, approximately 5–10 percent of AKs develop into squamous cell carcinoma within an average of two years. Since there is no way to know ahead of time which ones will become cancerous, it is very important to seek a dermatologist's care. Frequent skin examinations are the key to early detection and prevention.

The campaign website contains information on the condition and how to find a dermatologist, as well as information on the range of treatment options available.

“People who get AKs typically do not get just one,” said Dr. Marmur. “The years of sun damage affect entire regions of the skin. This is just further reason for adults who think they have AKs to speak with their dermatologist. And if you don't have a dermatologist, find one.”

For more information on AKs or to find a dermatologist, visit www.SpotSignsofAK.com.
